THE SELF STUDY PROCESS
SUNY ALBANY

PRESENTED BY DR. HILDA COLON PLUMEY
MAY 29, 2018
WHY ACCREDITATION?

Regional accreditation is a means of self-regulation adopted by the higher education community.

Accreditation is intended to support these goals:

- strengthen and sustain higher education,
- making it worthy of public confidence,
- minimizing the scope of external control.

Accreditation demonstrates an institution’s commitment to continuous self-assessment.

Accreditation typically lasts from a few years to up to 10 years, after which the school must reapply.

1. School self-evaluation
   School sends accrediting agency a self-evaluation describing its performance in relation to the accreditor's standards.

2. Peer review site visit
   A committee of peer volunteers, generally from other schools, is selected by the accrediting agency to review the school's self-evaluation and conduct a site visit to assess the school's compliance with accreditor's standards.

3. Accrediting agency decision
   The accrediting agency considers the self evaluation and the peer review team's assessment before issuing a decision on the school's accreditation status.

4. Peer review report
   Committee produces a confidential report assessing the school's compliance with the accreditor's standards and makes a recommendation on the school's accreditation.
